

MAGBRIDE TO DROP HIS HEALTH INQUIRY

Will Let Swann Continue Investigations of Department.

COPELAND OUTLINES PLAN

Will Make Removals if Necessary—Hylan Attacked by Aldermen.

Meddling into the administrative side of the Health Department was abandoned yesterday by President MacBride of the Civil Service Commission, who in a letter explained his stand to Dr. J. J. Swann, the new Commissioner. MacBride's plan was to have the Health Department under the control of the Civil Service Commission, but he has decided to let Dr. Swann handle the department. He began by referring to the trusts, the "Black Horse Cavalry" and other "reprehensible things," which he declared had been bought by William Randolph Hearst.

Explains Cause of Inquiry.

In his letter to Commissioner Copeland, President MacBride attempted to explain the purposes of the investigation which he started at the instance of the Mayor. He stated that the investigation was started because of the "Black Horse Cavalry" and other "reprehensible things," which he declared had been bought by William Randolph Hearst.

The letter further said that the Mayor's investigation had found that William J. Schieffelin, "wholesale drug dealer and head of the Citizens Union," acted as an oral examiner for the Civil Service Commission at a test which brought Mr. Brown from Tennessee to the position he now holds.

It further said that Mr. Brown has been under oath he has never taken a bribe from any source, but that he had been found guilty of taking a bribe from Mr. Schieffelin, as required by law.

Investigations, the letter charges, have found that Leonard M. Wallstein, former Commissioner of Accounts, "the paid agent of Mr. Schieffelin's Citizens Union," was one of the chief organizers of the "propaganda" to block an investigation which the Mayor had ordered.

Then Mr. MacBride's letter states that it is the Mayor's desire to extend work being done for babies and children and to extend the work that is being done by the bureau of preventable diseases.

Dr. Bolduan is Attacked. He next charges that Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, director of the Bureau of Public Health Education, used the bureau to promote the Staten Island garbage strike. He says that Dr. Bolduan (Dr. Bolduan) defended that infamous strike at a time when it was a live issue in a political campaign.

He then charges that Dr. Bolduan is also charged with obstructing an investigation into the activities of the Citizens Union.

"We are firmly convinced that this bureau as it is at present organized should be wiped out and the work of public health education done through some other agency in the department. How it should be done is for you to decide."

The letter further states that, convinced of Dr. Copeland's ability to handle his own department, further inquiry along administrative lines would be discontinued by the board appointed by the Mayor.

The investigation along civil service lines, it says, will be continued. After congratulating President MacBride on his forceful statement of the Mayor's position in the matter of the Health Department, Commissioner Copeland's answer says:

erty of Mayor Hylan. It is not his hunting ground. I was shocked to hear that Commissioner Amster had resigned. The answer the Mayor made to him is not the reply a Mayor of this city should make.

"Coming to the defense of the Mayor, Alderman McGarry ventured the opinion that the Mayor had a right to supervise the Department of Health.

"It is absurd to hear from Dr. Copeland that the Mayor is interfering. He has no right to interfere. He has no right to interfere. He has no right to interfere."

Calling attention to the opposition of the Mayor to increasing the fund of the Health Department for the purchase of antitoxin, Alderman Braunstein said:

"I have a sentimental reason also for objecting to this short-sighted policy. My own child died because of my inability to get antitoxin, and its scarcity has resulted in the needless death of many children. The Mayor's course is both vicious and stupid."

Copeland is Directed to Office.
When Health Commissioner Copeland assumed his duties yesterday he had to receive directions as to the location of the big Health Department building at Centre and Mulder streets.

"When it comes to the appointment of an advisory committee," was the reply, "I am going to appoint men who appeal to me and who will be of value to the department. When I select those men I assume that they will meet with the approval of his Honor the Mayor."

The Commissioner's attention was drawn to Dr. Amster's statement that the Mayor had demanded that Dr. Jacobson and Dr. Goldwater be dropped and he replied:

"Do you really think that the Mayor would make such a demand? I cannot believe that he did, as I have talked with the Mayor about Dr. Goldwater and he has always spoken kindly of him."

He then admitted that the Mayor's remark was made before Dr. Goldwater testified against the Mayor's investigation of the Citizens Union.

"I am going to find out what kind of machinery this department has. If I find that some of it is not running properly I intend to make changes. I will get information from the department from every source."

During the latter part of the interview, Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, whom Dr. Amster designated as agent for the position of secretary of the department, sat on a chair in the rear of the Commissioner's office.

The activity of District Attorney Swann's staff on the question of alleged graft in the Health Department was confined yesterday to the presentation of evidence to the April Grand Jury, which will hear further testimony today.

Indictments alleging bribery, extortion and acceptance of unlawful fees were asked for.

SEES BRITISH LABOR CABINET AFTER WAR

Paul Kellogg Predicts Vast Political Changes When Peace Comes.

TALKS TO BIG PRINTERS

School for Apprentices Elects Officers at Annual Meeting and Dinner.

A labor ministry in Great Britain after the war is not at all unlikely in the opinion of the best informed men in the kingdom, Paul Kellogg, editor of the Survey, told members of the employing printers' section of the School for Printers' Apprentices, which held its annual meeting and dinner last night in the City Club.

Mr. Kellogg, who has recently made an investigation of labor conditions in England, said that while the Labor party had thirty or forty members in Parliament now, it proposed to name between 200 and 300 candidates to stand at the next elections. It had a definite program, he explained, and the conditions were that many of its candidates would be elected.

"Another important factor in England after hostilities have terminated will be the returned soldier," said Mr. Kellogg. "He has fought and bled for his country for years and he is likely to decide that he has a stake in it himself and that he will do what he can to make conditions for his children better than they were for himself."

Ex-Soldiers to Be Politicians.
The former British soldiers will exercise at least as great an influence in future politics there as members of the Grand Army of the Republic did here in the years following the close of our civil war. Mr. Kellogg seemed inclined to believe.

He said the Labor party stood for practically the American scheme of public education, which should be free from the kindergarten through the university. This was proposed frankly with the view to educating labor to rule the country.

Another important plank in the Labor platform was a national minimum—minimum wages for all workers. Mr. Kellogg explained that the minimum would be a floor below which industrial workers could not drop. ROCKEFELLERS GREET SOLDIERS IN JERSEY

Elder John D. Shakes Hands With Camp Alfred Vail Boys.

John D. Rockefeller can tell a real man by his handshake, so he declared to members of the Signal Corps at Camp Alfred Vail, near Long Branch, N. J., yesterday. The Y. M. C. A. building at the camp was thronged with men in olive drab when Mr. Rockefeller and his son, John D. Jr., addressed them late in the afternoon. Afterward the soldiers crowded forward and all shook Mr. Rockefeller's hand as they were introduced.

"I like the way you shake hands," he told them. "I have talked and shaken hands with men for sixty years and I can tell real men by their handshake."

In his address Mr. Rockefeller told the soldiers he was "back of them in the war with all his might." His son declared that the Signal Corps men were setting a high example by their manliness and urged them to live many lives when they reached France and "uphold the honor of American manhood."

The soldiers cheered the party, which also included Mrs. Evans, Mr. Rockefeller's daughter, and Miss Grimm, the organist at his church, as they motored away from the Y. M. C. A. building on their way to the Rockefeller estate at Lakewood.

Mr. Rockefeller told Col. Arthur R. Cowen that it was the first time he had visited an army camp since the opening of the war and that he was pleased with his reception and with his experience in eating at the officers' mess. He promised to make a return visit in the near future.

CHAIN LETTER TOO EFFECTIVE.
Was Hospitalized, but Friends Still Roll In.

The unusual success of a "chain letter," started for the purpose of financing an American hospital in Paris, has caused the secret service to begin efforts to stop it. The hospital has long ago been equipped with 100 beds and fitted in every other way for its work with a good supply. The French Government, the hospital committee and the Red Cross have requested the secret service to act in discontinuing the campaign. The post office is returning 200 letters a day to the senders. It was estimated.

The chain was operated on a 25 cent basis, the person receiving the letter sending in his quarter and then writing to six friends to likewise. The six friends would write to six more, and so on.

PATTEN LINE CHANGES HANDS.
Capt. Harrison and H. J. Dike Get Long Branch Steamboats.

Harry J. Dike and Capt. Charles W. Harrison took over the management of the New York and Long Branch Steamboat Company, known as the Patten line, and the New York and Monmouth Park Steamboat Company, with an option for their purchase yesterday. The former company was the steamers Mary Patten, Thomas Patten and Elsie, and the latter the steamer Little Silver.

Mr. Dike and Capt. Harrison already operate lines between Baltimore and Norfolk and between New York and Philadelphia. Capt. Harrison has been elected president of the New York and Long Branch company. Jay Noble Emley, vice-president, Henry J. Dike, treasurer, and William A. Stevens, secretary, Walter R. Patten and his brother, Postmaster Thomas G. Patten, retire from the enterprise.

LOSS OF HUSBAND IS LAID TO OFFICE GIRL

Wife of Dr. Swanson, Dentist, Says Ungrateful Mate Deserted Her.

Mrs. Ida E. Swanson, wife of Dr. Fritz Julius Swanson, a dentist with offices at 755 Fifth Avenue and an income of $25,000 a year, so Mrs. Swanson says, filed a suit for legal separation in the Supreme Court yesterday basing her appeal on the cruel and inhuman treatment to which she says she has been subjected as a result of her husband falling violently in love with Miss Ernestine Edwards, his office assistant.

The case for alimony commensurate with her station in life and the custody of her son and daughter.

Dr. Swanson was quite poor when they were married. Mrs. Swanson says, and they had to live on the $10 weekly wage he earned as a clerk. He went to a dental college at night, eventually beginning a practice which has brought large returns during the last fifteen years, according to the affidavit.

Mrs. Swanson says that their home was furnished with money she earned, and that at first everything was quite happy.

"In 1916 my husband became a completely changed man," the complaint reads. "He began a course of cruel treatment which continued almost without cessation until May 14, 1917, when he abandoned me and our two children, Fritz J. and Muri L., both under 14."

"Dr. Swanson told me he had in his employ a Miss Ernestine Edwards who, to use his own terms, was 'wonderful.' Ever since then he has done nothing but tell me how much he is in love with Miss Edwards and that he cannot live without her. He frankly confessed that she loved him and lived only for him and his work."

On the night of May 13 last in their home, 600 West 160th street, Mrs. Swanson says, she found her husband writing a letter to Miss Edwards. She traced him with his conduct, and the next day the dentist left home.
